Local soldier injured in Afghanistan

McCormick stable after sustaining collapsed lung, internal bleeding

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Jeff McCormick received the phone call early Sunday morning every parent of a soldier fighting in the war on terror dreads — that his or her son or daughter has been injured.

McCormick's 22-year-old son, Don, was injured sometime over the weekend while fighting in Afghanistan.

A Marine Corps lance corporal, Don McCormick was based Nawa as a infantryman with the 6th Marines, Golf Company, Infantry Platoon, and is a 2009 graduate of Anderson County High School.

It was his second tour of duty fighting in Afghanistan.

Jeff McCormick said he was in Florida for a bass fishing tournament when he received a call around 3 a.m. Sunday, saying his son had been injured.

He said all he knows is that his son suffered a collapsed lung and is bleeding internally in his chest.

He said he hasn't been told how his son was injured, or if it was combat related.

"We are all just starved for information," Jeff McCormick said. "The hardest thing for me is that I can't get to him."

McCormick said he does know that his son is being flown from Nawa to Camp Leatherneck, the largest Marine Corps base in Afghanistan. From there, he will be transferred to an air base in Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, where he will undergo surgery. After that, he is scheduled to be flown to Landstuhl, Germany for additional treatment and will likely be sent to either Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland or Camp Lejeune, NC.

McCormick said he plans to fly to Germany by the end of the week.

Jeff McCormick is no stranger to the dangers associated with the wars in the Middle East. Following a career with Fish and Wildlife, McCormick worked as a civilian for the Department of Defense and performed training duties in Iraq, where he served on 215 combat patrols.

THREE MEN, VIRGINIA PLATES AND ONE VERY ODD ACCIDENT

'Injured' men try to kick open trunk, tear hole in seat after car smacks tree

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Three men were injured enough in an early-morning one-car accident to be taken to an area hospital, but apparently not enough to try to kick open the trunk and cut a hole in the back seat of their vehicle before help arrived.

The accident occurred Tuesday around 5 a.m. on Highway 53, about a mile off Highway 44 near Glensboro. The unidentified men were traveling north when their vehicle left the road and struck a tree. They told emergency personnel at the scene that they had swerved to miss a deer and a trash can, both of which they claimed were in the road.

The vehicle was apparently rented and had Virginia license plates.

Deputy Brian Boggs, left, and Anderson County Fire Chief Mike Barnes examine a vehicle that struck a tree on Highway 53, about a mile out of Glensboro.

When fire, EMS and police arrived, they apparently found all three injured and lying on the ground, according to 911 dispatch radio transmissions.

But when they began to investigate, it appeared the men were up and walking around before they arrived. The trunk of the rental vehicle was dented, apparently from the men kicking it to gain access, which they eventually did by cutting a large hole in the back seat.

As the victims were loaded into waiting ambulances, an Anderson County sheriff's deputy and firefighters were seen searching for evidence along the shoulders of the road and down a steep incline.

The men were not believed to be residents of Anderson County, rescuers at the scene said.

The accident remains under investigation by the Anderson County Sheriff's Office.

Truck pull promoter says rumors, innuendo better stop

Carey, Conway deny profiting personally from pulls

By Ben Carlson
News staff

The promoter of the annual truck and tractor pulls that provide funds for the county park told magistrates Tuesday that if the rumors and innuendo don't stop, he will put them on somewhere else.

"I'm just fed up with it," said Eddie Carey of the locally operated Carey's Motorsports. "I know it's coming from within here [the fiscal court] and it's time that person says it to my face."

No one on the fiscal court or audience spoke up.

Carey said he continues to hear rumors that he and Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway are lining their pockets with proceeds from the pull.

Both firmly denied taking money from the event during Tuesday's meeting.

"I have received not a dime from this," said Conway. "I brought this before the court and got it improved, and since that time we've supposedly been in bed together on this."

Conway said the allegations have surfaced in several places, not the least of which is an online comment board named Topix, which does not require people making comments to use their names.

During the previous meeting, the fiscal court OK'd applying for a $59,000 grant that would provide funds for bleachers for the pulling track and proposed football field. He said that immediately turned into conversation that he was approving county funds to benefit Carey's pulling event.

"That was on Topix the very night of the meeting," Conway said.

"How long is this animal going to be beat?"

"This better get fixed or this will be the last one," Carey said. "I'm sure Versailles will take it. I'm sure Frankfort will take it."

Carey told the court that it costs upwards of $30,000 to sponsor a two-night truck pull.

Since he began sponsoring them three years ago, he said he has donated the proceeds or sank them back into the park by building a fence around the pulling track and other improvements.

Montgomery, who chairs the fiscal court's events committee, said Carey gave $4,300 to the county following one year's pull, another $3,000 from another pull, and constructed $13,000 in fencing.

Montgomery also credited the pulls for helping make the annual Burgoo Festival a success.

The past two years, we would have lost our butts," said Montgomery, who serves on the Burgoo Festival committee.

Tuesday marked the second time in as many years that Carey was called before the fiscal court just days before a scheduled event to answer questions. Last year, he was required to sign a contract to verify that funds collected from the pull would be given to the county for park improvements.

On Tuesday, the court voted unanimously to allow Carey to sponsor a pull this weekend.

The pull is scheduled for Friday and Saturday at the county park, and will feature pullers from across several states. Admission is $10, and the pulls begin at 7 each night.

City to bill Legion, fiscal court for water

Judge-Executive fumes, says friend suggested 'digging a well'

By Ben Carlson
and Meaghan Downs
News staff

The City of Lawrenceburg has informed the fiscal court and American Legion Post 34 that each will have to start paying water and sewer bills in July.

City Clerk Robbie Hume said this change was due to language in the city's Series 2012 General Bond ordinance, which specifically mandates no free city water service for anyone — including the city itself.

Hume said the county park and American Legion, as well as city hall, had been receiving free water and sewer service for years, and did not know when that particular agreement was established.

"They've had water service for decades," Hume said. "Maybe there was a gentleman's agreement many decades ago. I just don't know."

That news didn't sit well with the fiscal court, which met Tuesday morning.

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway said taxpayers would now be on the hook to pay what he estimated to be $1,200 to $1,500 a month for water and sewer service in the park.

"This just leaves a bad taste in my mouth," Conway said after informing magistrates of the decision. "A friend of mine suggested we dig a well."

Magistrates were also clearly frustrated. Magistrate David Montgomery referenced a decade-old agreement that called for the city to provide water and sewer in the park in exchange for the county allowing the city to install water lines to serve other areas.

Conway said that was apparently a verbal agreement, and that it's not reflected anywhere in past meeting minutes.

Magistrate Forrest Dale Stevens suggested that if the city wants to start charging for water, the county should consider telling the city to get its water lines out of the park.

Conway said, "We're at their mercy," adding that he asked [Mayor Edwinna Baker] if the city could donate the money the fiscal court will pay for water and sewer back to the park.

"She said the city can't afford to do that," Conway said.

The American Legion, which leases the land on which the city park sits for $1 a year, declined to comment. The Legion also pays city taxes on that property.

It is expected to cost the Legion around $140 for month for water and sewer, considerably more during the annual Horse Show and Fair.

The change is the result of the city council unanimously passing a general bond ordinance April 9.

But even before the council voted for the new General Bond ordinance, Hume said, the fiscal court should have been paying for water and sewer service for the county park.

In 2004, the year Hume believes the county park was constructed, the city created and approved an ordinance that offered a reduced tap-on rate for the Anderson County community park — that is, if they signed up for city water service.

According to chapter 51 of this ordinance, the city would install water meters for the county for a cost of $500-$1,200, depending on the size of the water meter.

"The current ordinance states that they should have been paying, but it wasn't enforced, and it probably should have been," Hume said of the 2004 ordinance.

This ordinance also states that any city charges would be waived if the submitted application for water service was from a tax exempt, charitable or benevolent corporation or association.

According to Larry Hazlett, public works director, the county did pay a reduced rate to the city for its connection to city water and sewer lines.

But the fiscal court never established an account with the city, Hume said, and the park continued to receive free water and sewer service.

"I mean, it was common knowledge," Hume said of the city's exceptions for water and sewer billing. "It wasn't anything that was surprising. It was just a mutual thing that was allowed to take place."

"A lot of the county agencies already have bills as well. I think the park is the only county area that wasn't getting billed," Hume said.

Hume said the funds for providing free water and sewer service for city hall, the community park and the Legion were considered a part of the city's "unmetered water loss," a total derived from comparing the amount of water pumped from the river versus the amount of water lost during production versus gallons lost during distribution.

"There's a number there, but you couldn't define within that number where it's going," Hume said of the city's collective unmetered water loss.

"There'd be no way to break that down. They're not finite. You know what the total is, but you don't know what the contributing factors are."

Hume said the new cost to city hall for its water and sewer use should be minimal, and expects that the same will be true for both the county park and the Legion.

"My gut would be that it's not going to be huge," Hume said of the county park and Legion's upcoming water and sewer bills.

Hazlett, who has been taking water readings of the county park, Legion and city hall for record keeping purposes and to check for leaks, estimated the county park's water bill to be $500-600, the Legion's water bill to be around $150 and city hall's to be $27.

Conway said he isn't particularly comfortable with the city reading the meter in the park. He said last year when the county shut off its meter during the winter, it still received a bill for over 50,000 gallons of water.

"I was told if we shut the meter, we need to call and let them know," he said.

The fire district will continue to be the only exception to city water and sewer billing, though Hume said both city fire stations receive a water and sewer bill for their buildings. The county fire station in Stringtown also has city water service, and has always received a bill, he said.

Fiscal court considers 5.5% spending increase

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Spending is up just over 5.5 percent in the Anderson County Fiscal Court's proposed 2012-13 budget.

The budget, which was introduced on first reading during Tuesday's fiscal court meeting, calls for an additional $376,000 in spending over the current year, but also anticipates an additional $327,000 over what was budgeted for 2011-12.

The budget release drew no comments from magistrates, nor did the first reading of the budget require a vote. A second reading is scheduled for 6 p.m. May 15 at the fiscal court's chambers on Main Street.

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway encouraged magistrates to look over the budget and ask questions. He requested that any proposed changes include any line item to which funds are added includes which line item it should be taken from.

Total spending in the proposed budget goes from $6,796,725 million to $7,173,172.

The budget shows spending increases in numerous areas, one of the largest being a $74,700 increase in fringe benefits costs for county employees, $60,000 of which for health insurance coverage.

The budget also calls for $118,000 in additional spending for EMS, nearly half of which is to service debt on the purchase of a new ambulance and ambulance lease payments. The increase also includes an additional $33,000 in fuel. EMS has been "budget neutral" in recent years, and has funded its operations almost exclusively through insurance billing and not required money from the county's general fund.

Another increase will provide $25,000 each to Wild Turkey Distilling and Florida Tile for anticipated economic development incentives.

Solid waste is budgeted to spend an additional $70,000, most going toward the cost of pouring a large concrete pad at the recycling center.

Other increases included $30,000 to cover payments on the new sheriff's office; $18,000 in treasurer's salary; $40,000 in contract highway paving; and $15,400 in animal control salaries. Full-time salaries in that department are budgeted to increase $24,000, but part-time salaries are budgeted to go down $15,400.

The budget forecasts a revenue increase of $160,000 in real property taxes, and $171,000 in county road aid.

Four Roses honored among 'Best Whiskies in the World'

From staff reports

Four Roses Distillery again was named among the top spirits at the annual World Whiskies Awards, but this time it was Four Roses Small Batch taking the honors, the distillery announced. Four Roses Small Batch, a marriage of four of the 10 unique recipes produced by the distillery, was named "Best American Whiskey: Bourbon Seven Years and Under."

The awards will be featured in Whisky magazine's July issue, which is distributed globally, the news release said.

"Four Roses Small Batch is a marriage of four of our recipes known for their spicy flavor characteristics and fruity aromas - OBSK, OBSO, OESK and OESO," said Jim Rutledge, Four Roses master distiller.

"At 90 proof, this bourbon is excellent on the rocks and also wonderful for mixing cocktails."

Flat tax rate, new hours OK'd for health department

By Ben Carlson
News staff

New hours and a flat tax rate have been approved for the Anderson County Health Department as the agency continues to combat its financial problems.

Interim Health Director Tim Wright said the department's hours beginning July 9 will be 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday and Tuesday; 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Thursday; and 8 a.m. to noon on Friday.

Its current hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The change cuts the hours the department is open from 37.5 to 34.5, meaning each employee will be paid for three less hours each week.

Wright said that equates to each employee losing a month's pay during the coming year.

The cutbacks are just the latest in a string of spending reductions approved by the Anderson County Board of Health as it battles a $185,000 budget shortfall.

"The good news is that we thought we'd be that far in the red as of June 30, but as of today, it appears that it will actually be between $100,000 and $130,000," Wright said.

Wright

"We've been able to increase revenue while decreasing expenses."

Wright said the revenue increase is tied directly to attracting more patients. Since being named interim director in February when former director Brandon Hurley resigned, Wright said the average patient count has increased from around 22 per day to 30.

Asked to what he attributes the increased patient count, Wright said it's likely a combination of things.

"It could be better weather or that patients just seem more comfortable coming in, for some reason," he said.

"We've also done a considerable amount of community outreach, including news releases and advertising in The Anderson News."

Wright had proposed changes to the department's hours, including staying open until 7:30 p.m. on Thursday and closing Friday. That plan was approved by health officials in Frankfort, but rejected by the board of health.

"We have a high no-show rate for patients on Fridays," Wright said, adding that it would give staffers who have had their hours cut a chance to look for a second job.

"Several board members said they were concerned that the department has a black eye in public perception, and that they didn't want to make it worse by closing on Friday," Wright said.

Wright said the health board unanimously approved keeping its property tax rate at 30 cents for every $1,000 in assessed value.

He added that Michelle Searcy has replaced former health board member Joy Hoskins, and will serve as the board's nurse appointment through the end of the year. He said Searcy, an Anderson County resident, is the school health supervisor for the Franklin County Health Department.

Hospital offers online pre-registration

From staff reports

Frankfort Regional Medical Center now offers online pre-registration, according to a news release.

Patients are now able to pre-register online through the hospital's website for their upcoming procedures. This specifically includes patients who already have a procedure scheduled and anyone scheduled for a mammogram, the new release states.

Today's consumers have come to assume quick and easy, personalized business encounters — from online banking to booking airline tickets, the press release states. With online pre-registration, Frankfort Regional is providing healthcare options to its patients with the level of service and choice they expect.

By improving the pre-registration process in this way, the hospital's patients have increased control of their healthcare experience and greater flexibility in the pre-registration process.

Who can pre-register?

· Patients with a procedure already scheduled who wish to pre-register online

· Patients with a mammogram already scheduled who wish to pre-register online

To pre-register online, go to FrankfortRegional.com and select "Online Pre-Registration" from the quick links or under patients and visitors.

Too chicken to fight fires, but at least firefighters aren't Sweat stinging my eyes and breathing super-heated air, I exited a burning house last Saturday morning with a long-held belief firmly intact: Firefighters are absolutely out of their ever-lovin' minds.

Anderson County Fire Chief Mike Barnes invited me to a house burning that morning near the Four Roses Distillery, saying that I could get a taste of what it's like to be inside of a burning building. Not that I really wanted to know, but I figured I'd slip on one of those heavy jackets and a helmet, get a snoot full of smoke and get on with my Saturday.

Yeah, right. Not long after I arrived an actual recruit firefighter, Earl Gresham, gave me his gear and I soon learned what a pain in the rump roast it is to put on the 80 pounds of equipment they wear, and the intricacies of the breathing apparatus that keeps them alive.

I even learned that if you don't move for a few minutes, an alarm on the air tank goes off and that you have to wiggle your butt to make it stop. I figured they were just giving me a realistic view of what it's like to dress as they do, that is until the boots I was loaned proved too small.

"I'll just slip back into my sneakers," I said. "No big deal."

"You can't do that," said firefighter Ben Kallin, who, along with firefighter Brandon Woods, helped me dress. "It's going to be over 1,000 degrees in there. Your sneakers will melt to your feet."

As they looked for a larger pair of boots, my nervous mind raced. First, I'm no daredevil. I've passed up chances to bungee jump, parasail, skydive and go up in a hot air balloon — the very notion of going thousands of feet into the air in a wicker basket seems downright foolish.

Second, heat and I don't get along. I can hunt in January without gloves, usually take cold showers and seldom break out a winter coat even on the coldest of days.

Fire Chief Mike Barnes, right, tries to calm me down while we watch a fire burn Saturday during a training session near Four Roses.

But fear of being perceived for the chicken I am won the moment, and I was led into the house, up a set of creaky stairs and into a room that was quickly set ablaze.

It wasn't too bad at first. The loose straw piled in the corner caught quickly, but didn't put off too much smoke or heat.

That changed fast. It didn't take long before the walls began to burn and the flames spread to the ceiling. The heat — 1,000 degrees, indeed — rose quickly, heating the steel air tank on my back and leaving me feeling as though I was sucking air from a hair dryer.

It was the flames, though, that made me most nervous, particularly the ones overhead. My well-honed flight instinct starting kicking in, and several times I thought about bolting for the door.

I didn't, and I'm glad, because if nothing else the experience provided a perspective standing outside with a camera and notebook never could.

Once outside, I listened as Barnes, the chief, explained the nuances of what we experienced. He discussed the importance of the gear — it's roughly $8,000 to dress a firefighter in the 70

Photos by Kip Halvorsen

Here I am, partially geared up and ready to fight a fire. Little did I know that a short time later I'd actually be scared witless while flames danced over my head.

pounds of gear I wore — along with the necessity of training firefighters inside of an actual burning building.

He talked about the heat — "When your ears start to feel like they're being stung by bees, you know it's time to get moving" — the risk vs. loss system and the wonderfully phrased "art of reading smoke," which lets firefighters know what kind of materials are on fire before they enter a building.

I took notes while he spoke, but my eyes continued to wander to the second-floor room where I stood just minutes earlier. Another group of firefighters was already in there, and what they were dealing with was far worse than what I experienced.

Instead being contained to a corner of the room, the room now appeared engulfed as flames licked the outside window frame and smoke billowed from the eaves.

Yet they were in there, and not one considering making a run for the door the way I had done.

Outside, dozens of other firefighters eagerly waited their turns.

I asked Barnes what makes otherwise sensible men and women so eager to temp fate. I'll never forget his response.

"It's a calling that comes from up here," Barnes said, holding a gloved hand over his heart. "Whether you're a professional or volunteer, this isn't a job, it's a lifestyle, and these guys live for this stuff."

Indeed they do. And because there are men and women who do "live for this stuff," people like me — and given the low volunteer rates, like you — can run from our burning homes.

And watch these guys run in.

Offense is worst defense

We've perfected the art of being offended.

Correction.

We love perfecting the art of being offended.

People stumble all over themselves — and their computer keys — to be the first to offer their shock, disgust and outrage.

Pick a war, any war: the war on Christmas, the war on women, even the ridiculously hyped presidential election doggie wars.

Pick a side, and get your fake rage on.

I suppose it's how you can remind yourself of your own humanity, that at least you're not as bad as that guy.

You know, the guy who said or did that awful thing that one time.

It's an extremely easy club to join, and one that more people are becoming members of every day.

And what are we getting so crazy about?

Take a trip down to the comments section of literally any news story.

Not much actual talking going on.

Contrary to what the peanut gallery may say or write, offense is not always the best defense.

Because there's a good chance, a very good chance, that we'll care even less.

For every public blunder or misplaced statement, there is a chorus of offended voices that immediately swells in reply, fades into a whisper of discontent, and then into nothing.

Let's take a local example.

It wasn't any particular person that incited a collective outrage about the conditions of Wildcat Road.

But people wrote letters.

Advocated for a return to the pristine condition of Wildcat Creek as nature intended.

Myself, included.

Now, guess how many of those same "offended" individuals volunteered to assist the county with clean up last week.

I sincerely doubt it was all of those same people who claimed to be disgusted, offended, sick at the thought of Wildcat becoming a dumping ground.

I'm as guilty as anyone else in not having or making the time to help.

But at least I acknowledge it.

The very idea of being offended is to be so enraged, so insulted that you can't help but take action.

It's not a passive emotion, though people seem to treat it that way, by sitting back and running their mouths and assuming other people will step in to do the dirty work.

Ironically (or hypocritically, depending on how offensive you think I am), I'm offended by this bandwagon approach to enacting change.

It's not persuasive or intelligent.

To me, it's the equivalent of white noise.

I don't think posting a copy and paste paragraph as your Facebook status for one hour helps solve world hunger. Or keeps kids from committing suicide because they're bullied in school.

I don't think it's even a baby step.

The first step on the road to change is to stop acting so surprised that people can be stupid.

Stop pretending that people don't say hurtful, cruel things.

Stop fainting every time a politician, celebrity or neighbor says or does something you don't like.

If you really care that much, actually do something about it.

Listen, I understand the power of words.

But no one is going to find any sort of helpful power by attacking an issue or person through the safe anonymity of Topix forums.

All those people can ever ope to be, as they cling to their sense of higher morality and offended nature, is muzzled.

All growl and no bite.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hard work results in cleaner Wildcat Road

To the editor:

Thanks to a group of hard-working people, Wildcat Road is one step closer to becoming the pristine landscape it once was.

Last week, tons of waste and garbage was removed from one of the prettiest one-mile stretches of road in Anderson County.

I want to offer a sincere thank you to everyone who made possible this major cleanup project.

First, hats off to Ron Bolan and Chris Jenkins at Wayne Supply in Lexington for loaning the county, free of charge, an extremely large Caterpillar trackhoe. Wayne Supply saved county taxpayers several thousand dollars with its largess.

Use of the trackhoe also saved untold hours of labor.

Watching county road foreman Billy Powell Catlett operate the trackhoe was a thing of beauty.

Speaking of paid labor, kudos to county employees Tim Moore, Todd Ueltschi, Ronnie Hume, Jimmy Curt-singer, Glen Goodlett and George Peach.

Four more volunteers showed up to put in a hard day's work. They were David Thompson, Mark Mills, Bobby Nethery and Walt Ruggles.

I want to especially thank each of these citizens for contributing their time and energy.

People who show up to work for free are a special breed.

We can never thank them enough. Thank you to Magistrate Forrest Dale Stevens for working hard and donating his time.

Here's a guy who farms full time, helps raise over 100 acres of tobacco and still found time to work all day long.

That's commitment.

Lastly, thank you to Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway for orchestrating the entire show.

Without the judge, Wayne Supply and Billy Powell

Catlett, Wildcat Road would still be an eyesore.

CASA says thanks for successful auction

To the editor:

Court Appointed Special Advocates, which serves Franklin and Anderson counties, would like to thank you for your support of the "Bids for Kids" auction that benefited the CASA volunteer program.

A special evening was held in Frankfort on April 19 in support of CASA. Donated artwork was auctioned and works for sale included framed and unframed landscapes, prints, watercolors, cityscapes, abstracts and more.

Dinner was offered after the auction with a portion of all restaurant sales supporting CASA.

CASA (www.franklin-andersoncountycasa.org) is a private, non-profit organization providing trained volunteers to serve as personal, unbiased advocates for abused and neglected children involved in Family Court.

The evening provided over $2,300, which will benefit the CASA kids.

Christians should unite for National Day of Prayer

To the editor:

Is America in a crisis? I believe so.

I believe America is in a crisis of belief.

Sometimes it seems like our world is spinning out of control. Maybe it seems that your own life is spinning out of control.

Do you often long for peace and tranquility? God won't force himself in where he is not invited.

Particularly, our government has been pushing God out of American life every way they can.

God will keep out. "America, America, God shed his grace on thee. ..."

Look around, of all the nations of the world, the United States of America has been blessed so much. From the beginning, God has shed his grace on our nation. I believe the in Holy Bible, which is God's word to us.

While we are blessed to live in a community of approximately 60 churches, while other places in our country have turned away from God.

The signs are many. Evidences of the lack of God being allowed into our daily lives abound in our country today.

Turn on your television in the evening or read the news. From changing weather patterns, terrorism, tragedy, violence, crime, drugs, addictions, incurable diseases, marital difficulties, parenting battles, and financial problems, we see evidences of God being pushed out.

You are either suffering from or have someone close to you that is suffering from a lack of God in our nation. I believe that Jesus Christ is coming back to the Earth again.

Our only hope is Jesus.

I'm asking the Christian believers of Anderson County to join me in front of the Anderson County Courthouse on Thursday, May 3 from 12:15-12:45 p.m. to confess our sins, repent of our evil ways and pray God's grace and healing for our nation.

This Thursday is the 61st annual consecutive observance for the National Day of Prayer.

The theme is "One Nation, Under God" because "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."

If they really believed, Christians would turn out in such numbers that Lawrenceburg would be overflowing with people.

If we knock, God says he will answer.

Hope to see you Thursday.

May brings flurry of activity for busy gardeners

Happy May, the month of spring and growth. It seems like every day something new is blossoming out on the farm.

The reaching canes of black raspberries are covered in bright white blooms. The pink flowers of fleabane dot the edge of the lawn like bouquets that have been sprinkled about a table. Add in the rolling green hills and it's a work of art.

It is this time of year that we green-thumbers go crazy looking for new things and old things to plant outside. I don't do many annual flowers, but this year I've got two that I can't wait to plant around the house, lime petunias and gold dahlias. They're gorgeous.

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

The trick to planting in May is timing. It seems to rain almost every day. I don't play hooky from work, but there are many days when I strongly consider it, just so I can get stuff in the ground.

Working around Mother Nature has its challenges.

The sun is staying up longer, now, giving us a few more precious moments of light every day. Even if you don't have time to start a project, you can plan for the next day. Like eating an apple, we just take little bites and eventually it's all done. May is a really busy month.

If you just got your soil turned, you can begin planting lettuce, radishes, onions and spinach for a continuous crop of fresh salad.

Corn can go out in blocks. Beans can go in rows or up a trellis. Squash, melons, cucumbers, peppers and tomatoes can also go in the ground. Just keep an eye on the low overnight temperatures and be prepared to cover. Those last ones like it hot.

We have to get the tomato cages or fencing or stakes out and ready. We have to get the stacks of newspaper and straw bales ready for the mulching. We have to get the fertilizers bought or made. We've got to get the protective fences up. Whew! We have got a lot to do.

The days in May seem to whiz by at hyper speed. In my head, April just arrived and it's already over. It's only the pretty sights that slow me down and make me appreciate all the beauty sprouting around me. I do like to stop and smell the roses.

But May is May and it never really knows what season it's supposed to be in and we have had frosts in May. Shoot, we've had snow in May, so let me stress the importance of protection. You do not want to do all this work only to lose all those warm weather plants to cold frosty mornings.

May is a busy time for a lot of things and outdoor events seem to pop up as frequently as dandelions in the yard. This is the month the Anderson Humane Society holds the shot clinic (May 12) and the Garden Party (May 19), two of our most popular events. Keep those Saturdays free. You can go online for more information and registration. We even have the forms for the shot clinic there so you can fill them out ahead of time.

Many of you have been asking, so here's the answer. I open the stand in 24 days. From Memorial Day to Labor Day, you'll be able to find me every Saturday in front of Fast Tracks. I'll have all my books, colored pictures of pests and diseases, and plenty of tales to tell, so stop by.

Now, get that to-do list done and be sure to get plenty of sleep every night. Our days are going to be packed full of chores and just as the days grow longer, so will those lists. Plan on getting a full workout every day. After all, May is the month of growth. It just won't be our waistlines. That comes later with the harvests.

Happy growing.

Planning, budgeting are keys to financial management

I've been thinking about money. I bought a house several months ago and it seems that there's always something that's needed for the house. There's always some reason to spend money. I've been working down a prioritized list of what needs to be done and when. It's up to each of us to control where our money goes. If you don't control it, someone will be happy to lure it away.

The Extension Service has a publication called Money Management - How to Keep Money in Your Pocket FCS5-102. It includes a list of 11 suggestions on how to develop new spending habits. Developing a savings plan is a topic for another time. I'm going to discuss just three of those new spending habits.

Look now and buy later

A few years ago I was shopping for a new truck that would be used for business and family use. After asking many questions and looking at several models, I was almost ready to make a decision. I decided to sleep on it. The salesperson said the truck might not be there the next day if I didn't buy it then. I thought about 30 seconds and said, "How many of these trucks do you have in stock?" The answer was nine. I said, "More power to you if you can sell them in the next 30 minutes."

That was the amount of time left until closing for the day. I did go back and buy the truck a couple of days later. It really was exactly what I wanted but I didn't like the high-pressure sales tactic.

Learn to say no. Don't buy items now that don't rank high on your spending list. Sure, I'd like to get the materials for the retaining wall that I want to build so I can plant flowers and vegetables around the house. However, it is low on the priority list right now. I decided on a temporary way to manage the need for this growing season.

A second part of this habit is to say no to items that are too expensive for my budget. Finally, learn to say no to friends or relatives who are selling things, either for school activities or that car or camper you've been admiring. If it isn't the right time for you to buy, then it isn't a good buy.

Finally, make some spending rules to follow. I always shop with a list and I stick to it. I've already started making a list for the 127 Yard Sale. That's a bit of advance planning but if I don't write it down, then I might not remember exactly what I was looking for. There are only two items on my list but probably a few more will be added by August. I have a budget planned for this sale. I'll feel good about what I buy because I planned my purchase and stayed within budget. Neither of these items is a must have. Both will be nice and are something that I've wanted for several years. These items are just now moving up to the top of the sometime shopping list. Making a list and sticking to the budget are spending rules that have really helped me keep the finances under control.

Humanities program features Alben Barkley

From staff reports

Renowned Kentucky writer and speaker Ronald Elliott will recount the political career of Alben Barkley during a presentation Thursday, May 10 from 7 to 8 p.m. at Emma B. Ward Elementary School.

Barkley, a resident of Graves County, was a congressman and senator before becoming vice president in 1948. During his presentation, Elliott will discuss how Barkley missed becoming president by "a mere whisker not once, but twice," organizers said in a news release.

Admission is free, and the presentation will take place in the school's library.

NATIONAL GUARD HOSTS FUN DAY FOR MILITARY CHILDREN

The Kentucky National Guard and American Legion and Auxiliary hosted more than 230 adults and children of military families for its April 28 Military Child Appreciation Day at the American Legion Fairgrounds. Military members and their families from all over the commonwealth came to the fairgrounds for activities such as face painting, carnival games and more.

Frankfort Regional names employees of year

From staff reports

Frankfort Regional Medical Center recently announced Chad Ahn, MD, and Gina Purcell, RN, as the 2012 "Physician of the Year" and "Nurse of the Year," respectively, at the hospital's ninth annual "Nursing Year In Review" held at the Frankfort Country Club.

Karen Wooldridge, RN, was named the "Nursing Leader of the Year" and Lisa Scott, RN, was named "Nursing Rookie of the Year".

The annual awards were developed in 2004 to recognize quality physicians and nurses that demonstrate collaboration, a drive for excellence, charity, and passion for delivering care to patients.

Both nursing and medical staff nominates and votes on each of the awards. The awards were added in 2009 to recognize a member of the nursing leadership team and a nurse less than two years into their nursing career.

"The opportunity to recognize excellence in clinical practice creates a sense of teamwork and cooperation between our physicians and nurses," said Chip Peal, chief executive officer.

"Dr. Ahn, Ms. Purcell, Ms. Wooldridge and Ms. Scott are caring professionals who have served the hospital and our community. We are fortunate to have them as a part of our team."

Dr. Ahn is a board certified otolaryngologist with Ear, Nose and Throat Specialists in Frankfort. Several phrases and words were used on Ahn's nomination forms, including "compassionate with patients; families and staff, collaborative, innovative, professional; pleasant, kind and calm; knowledgeable and personable; provides quality medical care; great communication skills".

Purcell serves as a registered nurse in the operating room at the hospital. Some of the comments from Purcell's nomination forms stated "Gina is an excellent nurse, hard worker, very responsive, takes her work very seriously and always goes out of her way to make the work flow better."

Wooldridge serves as the associate chief nursing officer for the hospital. Comments used to describe Wooldridge's leadership were "leads by example, wonderful mentor and role model; highly respected leader, promotes unity and teamwork; caring towards everyone; always accessible and encouraging."

Scott serves as a registered nurse in the Center for Women's Health. Some of the comments received to describe Scott were "conscientious, motivated, intelligent; hard worker, team player, quick learner; caring, compassionate nurse with great patient care."

Volunteers, donations sought for Repair Affair

From staff reports

Local real estate agents will perform their second Repair Affair on May 11 and 12 and are seeking volunteers and donations.

Repair Affair designed to make repairs and updates to homes owned by senior citizens with funds provided by the Realtor Community Housing Foundation, which has made $3,600 available for this event.

Those interested are asked to meet each day at 7:30 at the Century 21 office, located next to 4 Way Stop and Go at the intersection of Old Frankfort Road and US 127. Lunch and drinks will be provided.

"Volunteers are needed to help with home repair to our community's senior population," organizers said.

"Builders and contractors are needed to volunteer time to help with material lists and supervising one of the projects the day of the event. Donations are helpful to supplement the $3,600 that is donated by the National Association of Realtors."

For more information, call Melinda Earlywine at 502-680-6634, Mike Inman at 859-351-9929, Dee Toll at 502-680-0918 or Jackie Nickell at 502-545-1323.

Prom 2012: 'We've Got Tonight'

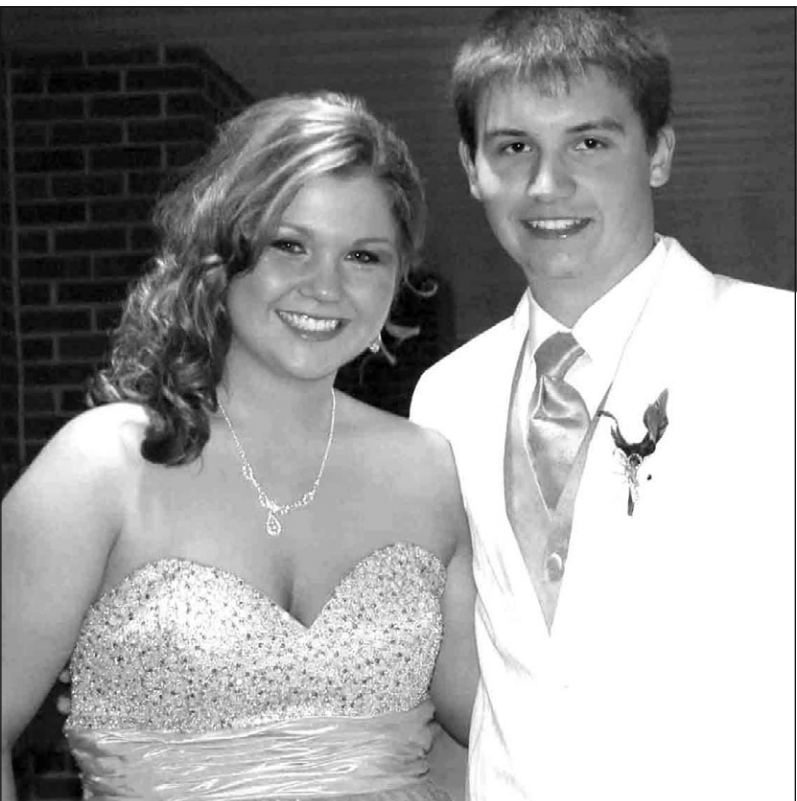

Former Prom Queens reminisce

Fellow prom queen Molly Roe, right, had one vision in mind for her perfect prom dress in 1999 — a blue, sparkly "Tooth Fairy" gown.

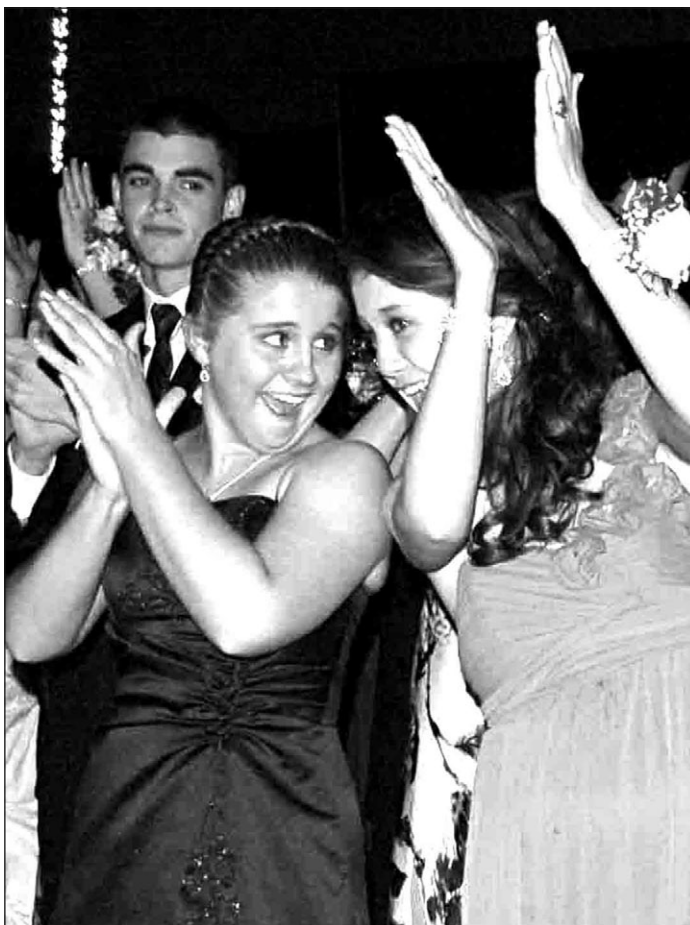

"The biggest memory for me was picking out my dress," Roe, who was crowned the 1999 prom queen at her Ohio high school, said. "I wanted one that resembled a tooth fairy."

Drivers place in bus safety rodeo

From staff reports

Clara Waldrige, Linda Curtsinger and Bill Curtsinger recently placed for Region Eight at the Bus Safety Rodeo at Spencer County Middle School on April 21.

The Bus Safety Rodeo is an annual competition in which bus drivers across the state are tested in their driving safety skills used while transporting school children.

Two drivers took second and third place in the conventional bus, and another driver took third place in the transit bus category, according to a news release.

The second place winner, Clara Waldrige, will be competing in the state finals June 8-9 in

Tons of trash removed from Wildcat Road

Fifteen tons. That's how much trash was removed from the gravel stretch of Wildcat Road last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. County employees, volunteers and Magistrates Forrest Dale Stevens and David Ruggles spent days removing illegally dumped trash from an area regarded as one of Anderson County's most scenic areas. Wayne Supply of Lexington donated the use of a trackhoe, a large machine capable of reaching part way down the steep bank and pulling out big items. The rest was removed by hand, as Stevens, Ruggles, and county employees Ronnie Hume and Tim Moore used what they called a "rubber rope" to lower each other down into the ravine. They were joined by several volunteers on Friday, including Ruggles' son, Walt, and resident David Thompson. Ruggles said they filled a dump truck eight times, and Stevens added that they hauled away several pickup loads of tires.

WATER WAY

Forget the boat, this man decided to drive his tractor across the old iron bridge that used to be across Bailey's Run to get out of Tyrone after Kentucky River flooded the area. Several people were parked on the other side of the bridge, possibly waiting for a ride from the tractor man to get back home. In the past, several Tyrone residents would park their cars and get boat rides in and out of Tyrone to get to their jobs or to the grocery store and other places when the area was flooded. The photo was found in a group of photos given the News by Leon Thornberry's family after he died.

GRITTON, MILLER HOLD OFFICES AT REGION 15 FHA

50 YEARS AGO

May 3, 1962

High winds, lightning and heavy rain caused considerable damage in Lawrenceburg and Anderson County Monday night about midnight as a storm crossed the county in a west to east path.

The greatest damage downtown was to the Gordon building on Main Street and the Harold Hanks building on Woodford Street. Severe winds blew the roof from the Gordon building and rain damage to the merchandise of The Little Shop was estimated to run between $8,000 and $10,000.

Several other buildings were damaged with a combined estimate of $75,000 to $100,000.

Porterhouse or T-bone steak was 98 cents a pound at A&P Supermarket. Pillsbury cake mixes were 3 for $1 and you could get a 46-ounce jar of Paramount hamburger dill chips for 47 cents.

Mrs. William Kirby broke the little finger of her right hand while at a Girl Scout meeting.

William David Mountjoy III enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He was to take his basic training at the Naval Training Center in Great Lakes, Ill.

Billy Robinson, former resident of Lawrenceburg residing in Port Charlotte, Fla., was named the man of the week at the Port Charlotte Golf and Country Club.

Coming up on the number four hole, playing par golf, Robinson teed off for a 190-yard drive that hit the cup. It was the second hole-in-one for the number four since the course had been in operation.

Deaths

William Davis Holmes, 23, instructor at Western High School died after an illness; Charles T. Puckett, 18, senior at Anderson High School, died after an illness; Elmore A. Vossmeier, 57, insurance executive, who had shown horses here; Elerise Harris, about 75, tenant farmer; Sallie Frasier Neale, 71, retired telephone operator for the K&I Railroad; O. Burton Mayes, 58, partner in Mayes-Hamilton Real Estate firm; Alonzo A. Moore, 62, farmer; Delance O. Beasley, 86, retired farmer; Oma Cook Watts, 72.

30 YEARS AGO

April 29, 1982

Carroll Roberts and Tammy Robinson were crowned king and queen of the Junior/Senior prom. Their senior attendants were: Sherri Gritton, Tony Webb, Carolyn Litkenhus, and Tom Smith. Junior attendants were: Ann Fallis, Johnny Gabhart, Glenda Taylor and Chip Chambers.

The Anderson High School High-Q team was off to a great start by winning on the WAVE-TV "High-Q" Show against Breckinridge County to advance to the second round competition.

Team members were: Seniors Bryan Shouse, captain; Angela Perkins, Donny Hendry, Steve Halvachs and Bill Gentry. Gentry, a sophomore, was an alternate.

Sandy Rucker graduated from the College of Cosmetology and Hair Design. She is a daughter of Bill and Lucille Rucker.

Retiring teachers were honored at a reception at Emma B. Ward School. Helen Turner was retiring after 25 years; Vangie Brown, 34 years; Helen "Smitty" Crossfield, 20 years; and Emma Mae Hughes, 34 and 9/10 years.

They had only performed together in public only three or four times. That didn't matter when they sang at the local FFA chapter competition. Rex Burkhead, Gill Whitehouse, Steve Gaines, Johnny Sutherland, Kevin Walker, Kevin Chilton and Leon Walldridge came away with a superior 1st rating. That advanced them to sing and play in the State FFA convention.

Roy Norris was featured on the back page with his 'hobby,' wood-working. The hobby was good to fall back on when he was laid off work at Central Screw Factory in Frankfort. He and his wife, Alice, and daughter, Theresa, lived on Benson Creek Road.

Elmer Ellis, nationally certified auto mechanic, joined the staff of Countryside Motors.

1982-83 Freshman cheerleaders were: Jan McAnly, Staci Newton, Kim Fallis, captain; Lee Ann Peyton, co-captain; Christy Mountjoy, Dawn Buntain and Wendy Bruce.

Kim Gritton was not only president of the Western FHA Club, she had also been chosen as president of Region 15 FHA.

Among her regional officers was another Western student, Scarlett Miller, song leader of Region 15 FHA. Miller was also the song leader and recreational leader of the Western Club. Other Western club officers were: Holly Miller, second vice president; Angie Boblitt, secretary-treasurer; Danette Darnell, historian-reporter; and Tammi Wainscott, parliamentarian.

People making you angry? Pray for them

I am sometimes one angry person, particularly about the things people say and do.

Do you get angry? I expect we all do, at times.

When I was younger I would get particularly angry when I had been wronged, and would want to get even or exact revenge.

Jess Thompson
Faith columnist

This is inherently what humans feel, and often do.

However there was one who never sinned, spoke with the authority of God and tells us how he expects us to treat those that have wronged us.

Mathew 5 says, "You have heard that it was said, 'Eye for eye, and tooth for tooth.' But I tell you, do not resist an evil person. If anyone slaps you on the right cheek, turn to them the other cheek also.

"And if anyone wants to sue you and take your shirt, hand over your coat as well. If anyone forces you to go one mile, go with them two miles."

So Jesus is telling us to love our enemies, right? That's easier said than done, or is it? Have you tried? Have you actually ever prayed for someone who had wronged you? Have you ever tried to do a good deed for someone who has been terrible to you? How powerful a statement Jesus makes when he shows us that it's more important to be kind and loving toward others than it is to have them be kind to us.

Next time you get cut off in traffic or what-not, stop and say a quick prayer for the person who has wronged you. Doing so just might make your day better.

Even opossum is a blessing

One of the blessings of being a pastor is from time to time people invite you into their home for lunch.

This is a wonderful time to enjoy home cooking and close fellowship.

The third church I pastored was a one-room church in a rural setting. Bill, a trustee for our church, liked to coon hunt.

There was Cindy, his wife and their two children.

It was a beautiful day. The invitation was given to come to their home for lunch.

Their living room, inside their beautiful home, was a place of warm conversation.

Bill showed off his coon dogs outside. The two children were bright and talented. The two parents were very proud of their children.

Meanwhile, as all this was going on, Cindy was in the kitchen diligently preparing our upcoming feast. There was a room or so separating us from the kitchen.

The cooking was going on and there was a smell I did not quite recognize, but I wrote it off as perhaps being a dish I had not tried yet.

Later, my assumptions were proven true.

Tim Johnson
Guest columnist

I grew up in the country and had tried many types of food, both domestic and those brought in by woodsmen. My grandmother on my dad's side could fix squirrel and dumplings good enough to eat for breakfast. The reason I know this is because as a young lad I did so.

Though you wouldn't know it from some of the trash that is on television now, "The Beverly Hillbillies" was the top rated show for a number of seasons, thus very popular at this time in history.

Granny, naturally, would fix "victuals" from all kinds of creatures of the woods.

Also growing up, as we were driving down the road, we would often joke about eating road kill. Dad would see a certain creature and comment, "Old smiley has smiled his last time."

It was time for lunch. We went into the kitchen where the dining room table was and the smell grew stronger and fouler. All the other food was great. The meat was served and announced. I tried it.

Moral of the story: if it looks like an opossum and smells like an opossum, it probably tastes like an opossum.

The Rev. Tim Johnson is a guest church columnist for The Anderson News and a pastor at Fellowship Baptist Church.

Former University of Kentucky basketball player Darius Miller challenges students at Robert B. Turner Elementary School to do well in the classroom and during the upcoming testing period during a visit to the school last week.

On the court and off, UK stars excel

Miller, Smith challenge students at Turner Elementary

The stage might have been different but Darius Miller's message was the same when he spoke to a group of giddy kids at Turner Elementary School last Thursday.

For the last two seasons, when the lights got brighter, Miller's shots suddenly got a bit straighter. When the expectations were higher, Darius Miller soared.

Remember?

Early in the second half of the national semifinal against Louisville, the Miller's Kentucky Wildcats were clinging to a 37-32 lead after being in front by double digits on several occasions in the first half.

The play-by-play tells the simple story: Miller enters the lineup with 18:42 to play. Miller hits a jump shot at 18:11. Miller steals with 17:27 to go, tosses to a basket by Anderson Davis 22 seconds later. At 16:49, Miller steals. Two seconds later, he scores on a layup.

In less than two minutes, the lead grew to 43-32.

And after Louisville tied things at 49, but UK had eased back in front 55-51, who was it that buried a 3-pointer that effectively sealed Louisville's fate?

The same guy who had parents looking, then nudging those in Turner's car-rider line last Thursday.

"Hey, there's Darius Miller!"

When you are one of the main cogs - the "glue guy," as the pundits liked to call the Mason County product - on a national championship basketball team, you are pretty well-known in these parts.

Miller and Amber Smith, the point guard on a pair of Elite Eight women's basketball teams at UK, visited Turner last week. They are both celebrities in central Kentucky. With the popularity of the Big Blue Nation, they could be set for life. Miller, especially, figures to be somewhat wealthy soon as he is taken in the late first round of the NBA Draft.

Even if he lasts into the second round, Miller will likely command a salary most people his age can't even dream about.

Smith might get a chance in the WNBA, but more than likely will be remembered as a fiery leader of the UK women's team that won the SEC championship for the first time in 30 years.

Listeners clapped and screamed.

Davis caps dandy day with Boyle win

Yount takes long jump

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

DANVILLE - Travis Davis had already had a good day and he knew things were going to just get better last Friday.

Less than six hours after signing a football letter-of-commitment with Thomas More College, making his collegiate destination official, Davis put together his best track and field day for Anderson County at the Boyle County Invitational.

Davis, a senior, won the shot put, his best event, with a heave of 45-10.50, more than a foot better than second-place Robbie Irgang of West Jessamine.

Davis also placed third in the discus with a throw of 110-11. Both efforts marked personal records for Davis.

"I knew after the second throw in the discus," Davis said of when he knew things were just right for him to do big things

With that 106-09 effort, Davis set his own personal best, only to shatter it the following throw.

"I have been pretty energetic today," Davis smiled.

was behind Travis McEachern and Nick Beckerson, both of Burgin. Davis then moved on to the shot put, where he delivered the best of the meet on his second throw.

"I felt my first throw was better than the second," Davis said of an effort of just under 44 feet.

Davis knows that his discus effort is a bit under what it will take to make the state, but his shot put efforts have been right in Hannah Horton goes for a short jog recently. Sunday, she plans on running her first marathon in Cincinnati.

No bread? Flying Pigs? It's a piece of cake

Anderson native to tackle her first marathon Sunday in Cincy

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

While the rest of the sports world will be watching horses that seem to fly this weekend, Hannah Horton will have her mind on another kind of airborne animal.

Pigs.

Flying Pigs, at that.

The morning after much of the sports world focuses on the Kentucky Derby, Horton, a 2007 graduate of Anderson County High School will be lacing up the shoes and pounding the pavement for the Flying Pig Marathon in Cincinnati.

It will be her first race at 26 miles, 385 yards.

"Actually, I have no idea," Horton laughs when asked why a marathon, specifically one with a catchy name that has become one of the nation's most popular. "I know I will be pumped."

Really, she does have an idea on why she will put herself to one of the ultimate tests.

"I started thinking about (a marathon) last fall," she says. "I have done a lot of 5K races and have improved my time every time. So I put on Facebook, 'If someone will pay my registration, I will run a marathon.'"

Be careful what you wish for.

Almost immediately, a cousin who lives in Virginia anted up the $90 fee and Horton was all in.

Which is what she has

Red whips White in spring game

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Quarterback Zachary Carmichael hit on 8-of-16 passes for 224 yards and four touchdowns as the Red team defeated the White, 42-7, in the intra-squad scrimmage to end spring football practice at Anderson County High School.

A sophomore-to-be, Carmichael also returned an interception for a touchdown.

Rising senior Zach Kearns caught two passes for 125 yards and a score while Sam Laytart caught two for 88 yards and a touchdown.

Laytart, who will be a junior in the fall, also carried the ball seven times for 61 yards and a touchdown.

Some players saw action for both teams during the scrimmage.

Searcy

"I could not be more pleased," Anderson coach Mark Peach said of the 10-session spring practice.

"This is the most work we have gotten in any spring since I first arrived here."

Peach said at least eight linemen made good impressions while at least one returning starter, Landon Searcy, rehabbed from an injury.

"Defensively, Huston Page and Justin Woodworth had excellent springs at linebacker," Peach said. Another starting linebacker, Tristan Ashburn, also sat out spring practice to allow an injury to heal.

Anderson advanced to the state championship game last fall but experienced heavy graduation losses. Still, the Bearcats are likely to be a team to keep an eye on this fall.

Peach said the spring practice sessions did little to change that perception. "It gets me very excited about the potential we have in 2012," he said.

Smith to try out for junior all-stars

From staff reports

Anderson County High School basketball player Jay Smith has been invited to try out for the Kentucky Junior All-Star team this weekend at Georgetown College.

The junior team will be selected by tryout for the first time this season. In the past, a statewide all-star team had been put together in various ways, but never did a player who might have been under the radar and not invited have a chance to play.

The team will scrimmage the senior all-stars in preparation for the summer series and could play against the Indiana junior team this summer.

The versatile Smith was one of Anderson's leaders in nearly every statistical category. He averaged 11.5 points a game in his first full varsity season and was named to the Eighth Region All-Tournament team.

Players sign with Thomas More

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Three Anderson County High School football players will continue to be teammates next year at Thomas More College, located in Crestview Hills, Ky.

Blake Curtsinger, Travis Davis and Bill Rose all signed a letter of commitment with the NCAA Division III school in a ceremony at the school last Friday. None of the players will receive an athletic scholarship, in accordance with NCAA Division III rules. They are eligible for any other scholarship or grant money available to the general student population.

Curtsinger, a receiver and defensive back, chose Thomas More over Campbellsville University and Lindsey Wilson College. He plans on studying nursing at the school.

Davis, an all-state defensive lineman selection, also chose Thomas

More over Campbellsville and Lindsey Wilson. He also had offers from the University of the Cumberland and a college in Michigan. Davis plans on participating on the school's track team as well. He plans on studying physical therapy.

Rose, a record-setting kicker, chose Thomas More over Hanover, Murray State, Campbellsville and Lindsey Wilson. Rose plans on studying for a career in nursing.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Cumberlands wins MSC women's golf title

The University of the Cumberlands women's golf program capped the 2011-12 season with the Mid-South Conference Tournament championship. The Patriots won the tournament title by 43 strokes.

Anderson County resident and Cumberlands team member Taylor Gillis also earned an all-conference honorable mention.

Gillis was also one of 22 student-athletes earning academic all-conference for maintaining at least a 3.25 grade point average on a 4.0 scale and being a sophomore or higher standing.

Mustang runners ranked

Anderson County Middle School track performers Connor Duncan and Alorra Sims remain ranked among the state's best in the latest compilation of results from meets around the state.

Duncan has turned in the best and third-best times of the year in the 300-meter hurdles event. His best time of the year, 42.37, was recorded Friday in the Bates Creek

Middle School Invitational.

He is second in the 110-meter hurdles with a 15.67, recorded last Wednesday in the Capital City Championships. He is also ranked near the top in the 100-meter hurdles with a 15.66 time, good enough for third-best. That was recorded in the Western Hills Middle School All-Comers.

Sims is ranked No. 1 in the girls' 100-meter hurdles with a 16.20 time recorded at the Capital City Championships. She is second in the triple jump with a 32.75.

Bearcat non-contact football camp dates announced

Anderson County High School football coach Mark Peach has announced that the Bearcats will be hosting a non-contact youth football camp from Monday, June 4 through Thursday, June 7 at Hollie Warford Stadium at the high school.

The camp will run from 9 a.m. until noon each day and is open to boys entering the second through eighth grades. Campers will need a pair of cleats and tennis shoes for the camp.

The cost is $60 for pre-registration, $65 the first day of camp with registration forms available at the high school and the respective schools throughout the county.

Bearcat Basketball Camp

The annual Anderson County Bearcat basketball camp will be held from Monday, June 11 through Thursday, June 14, Coach Glen Drury has announced. The camp hours are 9 a.m. through 2 p.m. each day.

Each camper will need to bring a sack lunch. Concessions will be available.

Campers entering grades 1-3 will report to Emma B. Ward Elementary School, grades 4-5 should report to Saffell Street School and campers entering grades 6-9 should report to Anderson County High School.

The cost of the camp is $70 if pre-registered, $75 the first day of camp. Registration forms are available at all Anderson County schools.

For more information, contact Drury at 502-600-2482.

ANOTHER ANNIE OAKLEY?

Rita Lashae Curtsinger, 6, had quite a start with the turkey hunting season. At 4:49 p.m. on the first day of youth hunt, she killed her first turkey, weighing 22 pounds and sporting a 10-inch beard with 1.5-inch spurs. She was hunting with her papaw, Jim Duke, on the family farm on Dennis Road. A week later, on the opening morning of the regular turkey season, she and her papaw both got turkeys just minutes apart. Her second bird weighed 23 pounds and had 1.38-inch spurs and an 11.5-inch beard. Jim's turkey weighed 22 pounds with 1.5-inch spurs and a 12.5-inch beard.

Anderson tennis team boasts high hopes as regional tournament begins

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County boys' tennis coach T.J. Spivey knows a bit about what it takes to be successful in the post-season. Spivey teamed with Aaron Hume to win the regional doubles title in 2005 and the tandem is still Anderson's only regional titlist.

But Spivey feels the Bearcats could make some noise in the region with top doubles team Lowell Gordon and Luke Warford expected to make a run at joining Spivey and Hume as Anderson's only state qualifiers. They could also become do more and win the region.

"They are 11-1 and should be (seeded) in the top four of the region," Spivey says.

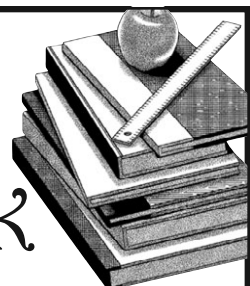

Anderson's No. 2 doubles team, Ty Glover and T.J. Pham, could also make some noise at the regional meet, which gets underway Monday, May 7 at Franklin County High School.

"They have not played as many matches but they are 7-0 and should be seeded. "I am confident both will be seeded."

Ben McDonald (11-2) and Ben Spear (3-6) are expected to be the Bearcats' two entries in the singles' tournament.

Students of the Week

Hunter Matheny

Grade and school: Preschool, Early Childhood Center
Favorite thing to do at school: I like to play dress-up in the house area.
Favorite song: 'Going on a Bear Hunt'
Favorite book: 'Who Wakes Rooster?'
Favorite movie: 'Bonanza'
Person in history I'd most like to meet: Sponge Bob Future plans: I'm going to be a police officer.
Teacher's comments: Hunter is a very smart and caring child. He is a hard worker and loves helping his friends and teachers. He is the son of David Matheny and the grandson of Wanda Rogers.

Levi Wilson

Grade and school: Seventh grade, Anderson County Middle School
Favorite subject: Algebra/Math
Favorite musical group: Skillet
Last book I read: 'Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows' by J.K. Rowling
Last movie I saw: 'Journey 2: The Mysterious Island'
Person in history I'd most like to meet: I would most like to meet Abraham Lincoln. I want to meet him because he abolished slavery and was a strong and noble leader.
Future plans: I plan to go to college and get a master's degree in teaching. After college, I hope to marry and have kids, teach math for the seventh grade and eventually become a math professor.
Principal's comments: Levi Wilson is a gifted student in all areas, but he excels in math classes. This year, Levi qualified for the state finals in Math Counts! He has even developed a theorem dealing with solving for a variable with multiple exponents. Levi is a friend to all and a leader in the classroom.

the mix of the area's best all season. Davis needs to add about 30 feet to best John Updike's school record in the discus, set two years ago, but he feels he can add just over three feet to the shot put in order to become the new school record holder. "That record has stood longer than any other," Davis said of D.K. Duvall's mark, set in 1976. "I am trying to add four feet."

Davis had won the Woodford County All-Comers shot put three days before with a throw of 44-10. He also won the discus in that meet with a 98-11 effort.

Another Anderson performer, Tiffany Yount also had a big day, taking first place in the girls' long jump by more than five inches over Boyle County's Holli Hester. Yount, a sophomore, jumped 14-09 to win the event. She also took first at Woodford at 15-04.

As a team the Anderson boys placed fourth in the 10-team Boyle meet with 81 points. The Bearcats also were second in the five-team Woodford meet, scoring 108 points, 19 behind first-place Scott County.

Champions dance teams earn titles

From staff reports

Competing in the National Dance Alliance's International Competition April 22, 2012, in Daytona Beach, Florida, the Champions Elite Senior All-Star Dance team won both the Hip-Hop and Pom divisions, and the Pom dance performance was also recognized as having the highest score of any team competing in any division by NDA at that event. In addition to the victories at the international NDA competition, at which there were teams from Australia and Ukraine, the Senior team, during the past season, won four first-place titles, two second-place titles, and two national champion titles.

The Junior All-Star team's standings included four first place titles, one national champion title, and two second place International titles. The Youth All-Star team's awards included four first place titles, three national champion titles, and two second place International titles. In its first year of existence, the Mini All-Star team had four first place titles, three national titles, and two second-place international titles.

Additionally, over the past season, the Senior team received four grand champion awards during the season, and the Youth squad received two grand champion awards. These awards recognize overall excellence at a particular event.

Champions Elite Dance will be holding tryouts for the 2012

- 2013 season May 9-12, 2012. Clinic hours will be Wednesday, May 9 from 5-7 p.m. for the mini and youth groups and 7-9 for the junior and senior groups; an optional clinic on Thursday, May 10, from 6-8 p.m. for all groups; and tryouts for all teams will be conducted Saturday, May 12 at 9 a.m. For additional information or to request a tryout packet, please contact coach Andrea Masters at 859-608-3553 or email her at wildcatdanzers@yahoo.com.

Shelby gets walkoff win against Bearcats

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

SHELBYVILLE - Another nail-biter. Another walk-off. But this time it was Anderson County leaving the field with the heads down.

Shelby County's Jakub Noonan ripped a clean single to left field, driving in courtesy runner Tyler Eades to give the Rockets a 2-1 win over Anderson in district play last Tuesday at the Shelby County Athletic Complex.

With one out, Noonan lined Landon Case's offering just out of the reach of diving left-fielder Josh Brown. Eades, running for catcher Tee Goble, who had laced a one-out double, scored easily.

Anderson wasted a stellar performance from starting pitcher Steven Watts, who suffered the tough-luck loss. Watts worked 6.1 innings before giving way to Case after Goble's double to center field. Watts, a senior right-hander was dominant, striking out 11 and giving up just two hits.

After Kipp Moore led off the bottom of the first with a single, Watts retired 16 consecutive Shelby batters, including striking out six in a row during one stretch.

"That was Watts' best performance," Anderson coach L.W. Barnes said. "Every day, he is working on his breaking ball and he was nasty out there tonight."

"That was, by far, the best I have seen him pitch," added Anderson pitching coach Chris Copenhaver.

And, Barnes said, it should have been enough to win, even though Shelby starter Kam Bruner and Noonan, who came on in the fourth inning, limited Anderson to four hits.

"We gave them a run in the first inning," Barnes said of Shelby's first score of the game, "and we had a chance to go up 2-0, when we had a guy thrown out at third with nobody out."

Anderson had taken the lead in its first at-bat when Clay Guffey led off with a walk, then went to second when Bruner plunked Cole Sayre. Guffey scored when Moore bobbled Alex Payton's ground ball in the hole at short.

But Shelby responded when Moore singled, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. He scored on Bruner's fly ball to right field.

Anderson's base-running error came in the fourth inning. Eventually, the Bearcats could have had the bases loaded with no outs, but came up empty as Noonan came on in relief with one down.

Neither team threatened again until Shelby came up with the game winner.

Shelby's win was the sixth in a winning streak that eventually reached eight games before being snapped by North Bullitt on Saturday.

Shelby was 17-7 at the end of last week, but more importantly, 1-0 in district play. Anderson finished the week at 10-9 and 1-1 in district play.

Steven Watts delivers against Shelby County last Tuesday. Watts gave up just four hits in 13.1 innings of work last week.

Chances are that Shelby and Anderson will meet again in the first round of district tournament play, which is set to start Monday, May 21.

For years, Anderson and Shelby had dominated the 30th District, but the creation of Collins High School last year changed that. "For us, it will be one of the most competitive first-round games we have had in the district in a while," Barnes said.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Bearcats erupt to outslug Nelson; will take on state's best in upcoming games

Anderson hosts district foe Saturday, No. 2 Male Monday

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Anderson County scored 12 times in the top of the sixth inning to defeat Nelson County, 18-11 in a wild one at Bardstown last Thursday.

"It was a combination of good hitting and bad pitching," Barnes said of Anderson's uprising. Nelson had rallied for eight runs in the bottom of the fifth to take an 11-6 lead. Anderson had pulled starter Darrin Laswell with the bases loaded and clinging to a 6-3 lead, but suddenly found itself on the wrong end of the 11-6 count.

Josh Brown stroked a triple and a double while Brice Stockton smacked a pair of doubles for the Bearcats. Cole Sayre also had a productive day at the plate, going 3-for-5.

Clay Guffey came on in the sixth to pitch two scoreless innings.

West Jessamine 2, Anderson Co. 1

West Jessamine, ranked No. 11 in the state, turned an error into the game-winning run to defeat the Bearcats, 2-1, Friday in Nicholasville.

After getting a run on three singles in the first inning, the Colts capitalized on an Anderson error in the fifth to score the winning run.

Landon Case was the tough-luck loser in this one, giving up six hits and one earned run, but the Anderson bats delivered just two hits - an infield single by Guffey and a clean smack up the middle from Stockton.

Anderson had the tying run on third with one out in the seventh but the rally died with a strikeout and a pop out.

Anderson Co. 7, Washington Co. 1

The Bearcats got another stellar pitching performance from Watts, who had a perfect game going until the sixth inning before he yielded a single. Watts eventually gave up two hits and the one earned run as the Bearcats rolled.

Bearcats to take on some of state's best

Anderson will face two teams ranked in the state's Top 15 and play a game at the home of the Lexington Legends this week, but the biggest date of the week will undoubtedly be on Saturday when the Bearcats host Collins at noon in a district seeding game.

The Bearcats still have a chance at winning the top seed in the 30th District Tournament, but must beat the Titans to have a chance to do so.

"Collins, in my opinion, is probably the top team in the (Eighth) region," Barnes said. "It will be another opportunity to beat a high quality team."

Collins has already beaten Spencer County in district play and will play Shelby County on May 10. Anderson's only hope of the top seed are to beat Collins, coupled with a Collins win over Shelby.

Barnes is expected to pull out all of the stops in this one and nearly every pitcher should be available to work against the Titans.

Today, May 2, the Bearcats will travel to Danville, a team that has been in and out of the Top 10 all season. "That will be a tough challenge for us," Barnes said. "Not only are they very good, but we'll be holding our top pitchers to small pitch counts on account of Saturday's seeding game."

Friday, Anderson will travel to Whitaker Bank Park, the home of the Lexington Legends, for a game against Madison Southern. The first pitch is set for 6 p.m.

"Playing at Whitaker Bank Park is a nice treat," Barnes said. "The players are pretty excited for the opportunity." Madison Southern was 9-14 through the week-end and had few common opponents with the Bearcats.

Monday, Anderson hosts Louisville Male, which has spent much of the year ranked No. 1 in the state before ceding that ranking to Lexington Catholic last week. "Male is scary good," Barnes said.

The teams have played in the past, most notably in the semi-state series that started the state tournament in 2003. "I know they were loaded last year, when they handled us pretty easily and they were junior-dominated last year," Barnes said.

But Barnes also knows his program has beaten ranked teams, including Glasgow this year. "We've played top teams well in the past, and we've beaten a top team in the past (No. 1 Dunbar in 2003), so we'll just go out and compete."

"I think our team has begun to really compete the last few games."

HORTON

been about running since getting serious about it last May. Horton, who never played any sports while in high school, has shed nearly 70 pounds. She jumped in with both feet, literally, entering the Chick-Fil-A 5K last summer. Before things slowed down in the fall, she had been in an estimated 20 five-kilometer (3.1 mile) races before moving on to tougher challenges this year.

"I just went out one day and started running," Horton says with a sheepish grin. "I had been running off and on since graduation (from high school)."

While she has covered 18 miles in one training run, the longest she has ever raced has been a half-marathon, held at Keeneland Race Course in Lexington.

"I wanted to finish that in two hours. I did in 1:58," Horton smiles. "A lot of people that were doing the Keeneland race were using it as kind of a 'pre-marathon.'"

Once Horton was hooked on running, she decided to look into the long race. "I saw people running effortlessly and I thought, 'I would like to do that,'" she says.

Even though she works in her family business, Heavens To Betsy bakery and sandwich shop in downtown Lawrenceburg, Horton had to show some determination with her diet.

She gave up bread. Not even a crumb or an occasional ham sandwich.

And she pounds the pavement around Versailles, where she now lives, following a 16-week marathon training course she found online. She runs four days a week and also rides her bike and takes a spinning class at Falling Springs Recreation Center.

The longest runs are on Fridays, with the recent 18-miler coming on a bad day. "Nothing went right that day," Horton says with a smile.

And there are times that Horton wonders what she got herself into. "Oh, big time," she says with a big laugh. "About once a week. It is usually before long runs."

To most, a long run is once around the block, but to Horton, it is defined as 10 miles or more.

And now Hannah Horton is looking to take the longest run of her life Sunday in a race named for flying pigs above a riverfront sculpture in downtown Cincinnati, just east of Great American Ball Park. The flying pigs are a tribute to the spirit and importance of the pork industry in the development of Cincinnati.

The course is considered somewhat difficult and Horton admits she will not see it until she is running it. "The people at John's Running and Walk Shop (in Lexington) said it can be intimidating," Horton says.

She says she is determined to fight through the proverbial 20-mile wall and run all the way through. "I definitely fear the wall," she admits.

Horton says her goal is first to finish the race. She wants to do that in less than four hours, a pace of just under a 9-minute mile.

And when she gets to the finish line?

No bread. No ham sandwich.

Just cake.

"I love cake," Horton laughs. "I had a piece last week."

And when she crosses the finish line near the Flying Pig sculpture, Hannah Horton already has everything worked out in her mind.

She laughs.

Hannah Horton already has a sticker for her car showing she has completed a 13.1-mile half-marathon. She says she will put another on the other side of her trunk when she runs the 26.2-mile full marathon. She is competing in her first one on Sunday.

"I told mom I wanted a piece of strawberry and maple at the finish line."

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS
INSPECTION PERIOD
FOR THE PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Anderson County real property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 7 through May 21, 2012. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll.

This is the January 1, 2012, assessment on which state, county, library, health, fire, extension, and school taxes for 2012 will be due after September 15, 2012. The PVA office does not set tax rates. Kentucky law requires that property be assessed equally and uniformly, that each parcel of property be inspected for reassessment at least once every four years, and that the assessment reflect the price the property would bring in a voluntary sale between a willing buyer and willing seller, given a reasonable time on the market. Assessment notices will be sent to property owners by May 7th ONLY if the assessed value has increased.

The tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator, located at 101 Ollie Bowen Court (beside the Courthouse), and may be inspected between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and 8:30 a.m.-12:00 noon on Saturdays (by appointment).

Any taxpayer desiring to appeal an assessment on real property made by the PVA must first request a conference with the PVA or a designated deputy. The conference may be held prior to or during the inspection period.

Any taxpayer still aggrieved by an assessment on real property after the conference with the PVA or designated deputy may appeal to the county board of assessment appeals.

The taxpayer can appeal his assessment by filing in person or sending a letter or other written petition stating the reasons for appeal, identifying the property and stating the taxpayer's opinion of the fair cash value of the property.

The appeal must be filed with the county clerk's office no later than May 22nd.

A taxpayer failing to appeal to the county board of assessment appeals, or failing to appear before the board, either in person or by designated representative, will not be eligible to appeal directly to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.
